Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 13, 1897. Bad field play and battery work by the senatorial outfit can be blamed for the defeat by the reorganized Pirates today. The error column looks rather ragged. Three of these bungles figured in run-counting. The winning tally came in on a double steal where the third hand was out just after the other runner struck the plate.

The Pirates were pretty nearly a new team. Old timer Denny Lyons was missing, while a catcher was on third and a pitcher in right. The new men did not have much of a hand in the victory, though. Their misplays helped Washington.

It was ladies' day, and Hawley and Mc James were all smiles when they went onto the slab. The game was rather close in the early innings. Pittsburg got the lead in the fifth, and then the Senators had to play a trailing game and try for two and in the fifth, and then the Senators had to play a trailing game and try for two and three runs in a bunch.

The Washingtons scored first. Jim McGuire was picking out good ones. He began the bingo work in the second inning, when he opened with a double to right. Jim ran with his usual speed. Reilly rushed a single to left, and Mac was home. Reilly moved up on the throw in. Charley should have been stopped at third on O'Brien's drive to Hawley, but Leahy muffed the assist. A walk to Dr. Medicus McJames and a wild pitch followed.

The Pittsburgs made two, with two out, in the second, though they should not have gotten a man home.

De Montreville gathered Merritt's grounder, and then made a ground throw. Hawley's two-bagger caused the rest of the damage. These two runs put the Pirates in the game, and they seemed to be another team after that.

The Senators were one ahead when the fourth was over. On singles by Reilly, Brown and Tannehill's muff a score came in. Erown ruined chances for more by being caught on Tanny's return.

The fifth was where Pittsburg won the game. McJames by a one-handed stop robbed Tanny of a single. Leahy hit safe and took second on a wild pitch. On Davis' life Leahy was stopped, De Mont to Reilly. Davis, helped out by Smith's swing, stole second. Smith bunted safely and stole second on a passed ball. Padden walked and then Brodie punched to center, two men scoring.

The Senators fought hard for more tal-lies. In the eighth they had two on the corners, but O'Brien popped to Ely. Pitts-burg made two. Padden and Brodie sin-Ely sacrificed. Then came one of confusing plays. Merritt hit to r. Padden got in the see-saw. After g chase Padden and Brodie both held a long chase Padden and Brodie both held third base. Reilly claimed he touched Padden. However, Padden broke away, started for home and got there on Reilly's wild toss. Brodie tried to score, but Reilly threw him out. Merritt got third and scored on a passed ball.

Tom Brown made five hits off Hawley at Washington four weeks ago, and the Pirates gagged Pretty Pink about it. "He will never make five off me again in ten years," has always been Hawley's reply. The moment the game opened Brown swung on the ball for a crasher back of first base. A sure double was prevented by Davis' clever

The Senators lost a chance in the first because Davis made a marvelous running catch of Wrigley's foul. The effort brought applause from the disgruntled bleachers. The people who heard of the repartee between Demont and Hawley in a 5th avenue hotel on Monday night were interested in the trial between the two. Demont brushed past Hawley, and Pink cynically com-

"Suppose you are going to get two more hits off me Tuesday?" "Yes. two, and more, too," was Gene's re-tort. On Demont coming up to the bat in the first inning Hawley eyed him with dis-dain, and then seemed to put every ounce of exertion in his pitch. Demont swung three times without hitting the ball, and Hawley was prouder than Killen when he walked to the bench.

The new shift of the Pirates made one of those land company openings, but a fall was not long off. Tannehill let two good ones go by and then pasted the next for a one-baser to left.

Dement was spiked by Leahy while the latter was forced at second in Pittsburg's half of the first irning. The injury made the little fellow dance for a moment, but he wouldn't get out of the game.

Hawley had awful speed for a time in the second inning. He caught Tom Brown and Sel for air plunges. Brown was called out and he showed his temper, growling CINCINNATI. fully ten minutes.

The greatest surprise of the season was furnished in the third. Wrigley and McGuire hit safe, the latter's hit driving Zeke to third base. Tucker pushed a fly to Brodie, and every Senator felt sure that with this man's bad wing a run was as good as counted. Brodie grabbed the ball and fired it house catching Wrigley by a good as counted. Brodle grapped the ball and fired it home, catching Wrigley by a close shave. It was one of those "who'd a thunk it plays."

SHAMROCKS WON.

Loveless' Home Run Took the Starch Out of Winkleman.

The Shamrocks won the title of District champions by defeating the Bureau of Engraving and Printing team at National close and exciting up to the fifth inning, when Loveless made a home run that seemed to take some of the starch out of Winkleman. Following his run three more Shamrocks came across the rubber, and the Bureaus were never able to head their opponents for championship honors. Norcom pitched for the Shamrocks and did well, being supported in splendid style.

Winkleman did all right up to the fifth, when Loveless' smash of the pigskin rat-tled him, and after that inning Brown went in, the latter being wild and allowing between the Pirates and Senators. It is reported that Mercer will go in the box sgain today, but it is more likely that sgain today, but it is more likely that Swaim will do the pitching for the Washingtons.

Pitcher McDermott was given his release yesterday by the Clevelands. He has done fairly well, but the club has plenty of pitchers without him.

The Louisville club is still on the lookout for players. They made a big mistake when they released Rogers, and this fact is becoming apparent day by day.

Van Haltren and Tiernan are doing gilt edge work for the Ghants these days, and "Ducky" Holmes is not far behind.

Delehanty made nine hits out of nine times at the bat yesterday. He evidently wasn't feeling well. A nine of Delehantys would be a corker.

The New Yorks have something like thirty-five games at home in the fall, and with this advantage the team is likely to keep all the ambitious pennant chasers guessing. As to winning the pennant, the New Yorks' captain only winks his off eye when the possibility is suggested.
